who can translate Kobo and other eReader software into HTML? I'm looking for a translator who can convert my Kobo, LG and or Tomtom e-readers and other apps into HTML. I need all of the major types of eReader apps so I can load them on my PC, and I'm not looking for a bunch of things that I don't want on my PC. If you are interested I have the Kobo version of the apps. I can provide more information if necessary. I don't need someone to design it or do any of the work I just need someone to do the actual translation into HTML code so I can keep all of my books. I need this within a week.

Yes, we can do it if you send us the files. Have you tried the programs in the main catalog on filemyne? They all have a catalog where you can upload books and apps. I do not know if this is what you need, but it is something you should consider. I have tried filemyne before and don't like it because it doesn't have all of the necessary ereader apps.

That's why I'm looking for someone who can just translate the apps. Then you are looking for someone who can create a whole software. If I didn't read this, I would say you have to use a professional translator or more like a professional software developer. Yes, I know that. But I need a translation of apps not the full software. I can't find anyone on here that will do this for me. I'm looking for something easy that someone else has done for them. I have tried filemyne before and don't like it because it doesn't have all of the necessary ereader apps. That's
