Q: Issue with for loop through tensors in Tensorflow When I run the below code: `import tensorflow as tf x = tf.placeholder("float32", [None,10]) y = tf.placeholder("float32", [None,11]) for i in tf.range(4): z = tf.matmul(x, y) with tf.Session() as sess: z.eval()` I get the following error: `z = tf.matmul(x, y) AttributeError: 'tf.Tensor' object has no attribute '__getitem__'` But when I change `i` to a tensor instead of a number `for i in tf.range(4): z = tf.matmul(x, y) with tf.Session() as sess: z.eval()` it works perfectly. Why does it happen and what is the difference between the two for loops?

EDIT: The issue is with the `i` variable and not the placeholders. The right solution I have found is: `x = tf.placeholder("float32", [None,10]) y = tf.placeholder("float32", [None,11]) for _ in range(4): z = tf.matmul(x, y) with tf.Session() as sess: z.eval()`

A: The right solution I have found is `x = tf.placeholder("float32", [`
