I know I can't write about Australia without also writing about Vatican City, the tiny independent state within Italy that forms an umbrella for the Holy See. To give you a sense of just how small this country is, when you consider that the USA is larger in area than Australia, take a look at these maps. Vatican City has an area of just.38 square kilometres, equivalent to the size of one small suburban block in Melbourne, such as Knox Road or Salisbury Street. That's just three times the size of the High Street in Sydney. The only other country with a smaller area than Vatican City is Monaco, which is 0.07 square kilometres. Both Vatican City and Monaco are micronations, created by the sovereign states of Italy and France respectively for the exclusive use of the Roman Catholic Church. Both are members of the United Nations. The smallest country by population is Monaco, with a total of 2,285 residents, followed by Vatican City with 969 residents. But when we consider population as a percentage of national area, Monaco comes out in front. Its population is less than 1 per cent of the total area of its landmass. This is 0.74 per cent, compared to Vatican City's 0.5 per cent. Like Monaco, Vatican City also has a special status, which is reflected in its coat of arms, which is almost identical to Monaco's. Both countries are ruled by the Pope and both host Vatican embassies. The most notable differences between these two Vatican states are the massive difference in population, followed by the similarity of the national coats of arms. It is interesting to note that while both Monaco and Vatican City are Vatican states, there is a political difference. Monaco is a monarchy ruled by a Prince, while Vatican City is a republic governed by the President of the Vatican Council. There have been controversies over this difference

Requirements: In order to use icons from this pack, you need to have the "Gimp" or "Gimp Elements" program. If you do not have the program installed on your computer, you can download it from Features: - All the icons that are included in this set of icons are available in the PNG format. This means they are compatible with all the iconsets that support this filetype. - All the icons are designed for Apple Macintosh systems. They are all professionally designed by me and optimized for iMac OS X operating systems. - All the icons are designed for the Dock program. This means that you can use all the icons in your dock program to replace the standard icons that are displayed when you place an object into your dock. - The folder icon has a special treatment because it has a little "U" design at the bottom. You can add the icon to your custom folder list and add them to your dock. This means you can use the icons for your folders with the standard icons at the Dock. If you find any issue with this set of icons, please send me a mail (support@iconsmart.com). I will do my best to fix it as soon as possible.In what appears to be the first instance of a globally-distributed non-nation-state hacking attack against a specific computer system, it appears that a self-proclaimed pro-ISIS hacker with the internet handle Abdo2 has set his sights on at least one overseas target. According to new research from the cybersecurity firm FireEye, an individual known as Abdo2 — also known as Abu Talha al-Sudani al-Almani, a Kuwaiti hacker and pro-ISIS user who now lives in Iraq — carried out a destructive hack against the Israeli Ministry of Defense in September, and appears to be using the same tactics again. Using a tool known as the "CarbonPOS malware," Abdo2 deployed a malicious cryptocurrency wallet and then dumped the stolen funds into a digital currency known as Monero, at the time worth less than $23, according to a FireEye analysis. In a statement, the company referred to the attack as a "classic disruptive campaign"
