Win Barometer is a lightweight application that can be run from your desktop without occupying your computer's resources. Win Barometer looks very user friendly and it is easy to access all its functions. You can have up to six location bars displayed on the screen simultaneously, each with its own weather forecast. You can have up to six location bars displayed on the screen simultaneously, each with its own weather forecast. The application offers five weather information categories including air quality, temperature, humidity, visibility and wind. Each category has its own individual colour indicating the level of information you receive about it. A huge advantage of this weather application is its ability to provide information about local weather in a small size and at the same time it can give you a detailed forecast. Do you like Win Barometer? You can give your vote for it in the poll located at the end of this review. It provides you with up to eight location bars on the screen simultaneously, each with its own weather forecast. Moreover, it can show you the temperature value, air quality, humidity, visibility and wind. Even though it can show you the weather conditions and forecast for up to 8 locations, you can only choose one of them at any given time. This is a great feature because it simplifies weather forecasting as all you have to do is select the location you prefer to visit. Another great feature is the fact that it is possible to have the locations displayed in a continuous fashion without having to scroll around. Everything you need is there Win Barometer offers users the option to select the city that they live in or any other spot in the world. Once a city is selected, the location can be preset and, if needed, be updated every time the application needs to do so. The main screen of the application includes all the information you need such as the air quality, temperature, humidity, visibility and wind. The latter is the only information not present in the main window. The application is fully customizable so you can even choose the place of the location bar that you want to have displayed on the screen. Moreover, you can also change the city's names and the weather forecast text and the font colour that appears next to the forecast. The size of the application makes it easy to use Win Bar
